Step 1: Return to Classes and Instruction

We are excited to have our sixth-grade students return to school virtually/online. Over the next two weeks teachers will be participating in professional development virtually/online using Building Something Different (BSD) <https://bsd.education/offerings/online-learning-platform/> and Zoom. Teachers are beginning to reach out to families and welcoming our students back to school via email, teacher page, or phone. Sixth grade students will begin online/virtual instruction/classes with their teachers on Tuesday, April 14, 2020.

The District will operate on a six-day cycle. Teachers will give students and families updated schedules each week. The rationale for this schedule is to give students and teachers the time necessary to focus on essential content and to give students time to receive the feedback they deserve as we continue to move forward. Students will be directly engaged in a few subjects a day. Please see the chart below indicating the focus areas for each day. Your child's teacher will give you specific times your child should log in. Students will receive instruction and will be provided assignments related to that instruction. Students are expected to complete their schoolwork and teachers will provide information about when assignments will need to be completed. It will be important that students attend their classes through BSD in order to receive teacher instruction and receive information about their assignments. Zoom and Google Classrooms will also be accessible through this platform. Teachers will have scheduled office hours to answer questions or meet with students individually or small groups.

Step #2: Wrap up your work from the 3rd Marking Period

The 3rd marking period was set to conclude on March 31, 2020. Because of the recent events and state mandated closure of schools, we've extended the marking period and it will now end on Friday, April 17, 2020. This will give students additional time and an opportunity to complete any assignments that may be outstanding. Students, this means if you owe assignments, you need to communicate with your teachers, complete the work and resolve any outstanding issues quickly. The fourth marking period will begin on Monday, April 20, 2020. Any new learning during the week of April 14-17 will be posted to the 4th marking period.

Step #3: Know and follow the expectations in online/virtual schooling.

Just as was true when you attended school in person, it is important that you know and follow the expectations in virtual/online schooling. Doing so will only increase your success.

- Students are expected to attend classes and attendance matters! Starting April 14, 2020, students will be required to check in daily with teachers and access assignments via BSD. Teachers will be taking attendance regularly. It is very important that we can affirm that students are attending virtual classes, receiving instruction, and completing assignments. If students do not attend classes, we cannot in good faith, issue course credit.
- Assignments will be graded. Assignments will be graded, and assessments will be given just as they were when you physically attended schools. Your teachers will explain their expectations to you for their class, and they will record grades in Home Access just as they did when you attended school in person.
- Academic Integrity. All students are expected to do their own work. Students should refrain from artificial means of assistance, such as sharing answers for independent work, using Google to find answers or other practices that compromise their academic integrity.
- Student Behavior. Students are expected to follow guidelines and procedures set up by their teachers regarding virtual/online etiquette. The student discipline code and technology guidelines will still be enforced.
- Homework The idea of homework is more accurately described as the continuation of learning. You will most likely be engaged in both short-term and long-term assignments. Students will have the opportunity to engage in work each day. This includes independent reading. The following are timeframes or guidelines as to how long each assignment should take to complete independently is listed below:

Grades 6-8
Up to 50 minutes per subject per day.

Keep in mind these are just a benchmark. Please let you teacher(s) know if work completion is taking significantly longer.

Step #4: Communicate!

Just as it was when you attended school in person, communicating with your teachers is an important part of your success in school. Do your part, work hard, keep connected with your teachers. Doing so will result in a smooth transition to virtual/online school.

- How do I communicate with my teacher? Your teachers want and need to see you in class. They are here to assist you. Teachers check email regularly (though they may not be able to check at every moment of the day because they are teaching other classes in addition to yours). Teachers will also be holding 'office hours' and you can meet with them virtually during their office hours, or via telephone, at times arranged with the teacher.
- Communication with Counselors: Your counselor will be holding office hours and can also be reached through email and via telephone appointments. Just as was the case when you physically attended school, plan counselor visits around your school classes. If you need to miss class to speak to a counselor, please get permission from your teacher. (See that! Some things are the same whether attending school physically or virtually!)
- Communication with Principals: Your principals and assistant principals will be available, should you need them. Because they are supporting teachers, attending meetings virtually, and continuing to work to ensure your success, the easiest way to contact your principal or assistant principals is through email or your classroom teacher. Just as was the case when you attended school in person, if you have questions about your classwork or classes, it's always a good idea to start by talking to your teacher. If you can't resolve the issue, seeing your guidance counselor can often be helpful. We do know that there are other reasons for which you may need to speak to your building administration, and they are here for you and look forward to connecting with you.

Other Important Information and frequently asked questions:

- What about athletics and events we had planned, like field trips and dances? We know how important these are to you as students, and they are important to your teachers and administrators as well. Our goal is to be able to hold as many of these events as possible, and yet, we know that some of what occurs will be dependent on the rules and guidelines the Governor and Department of Education issue for schools and families. We will keep you informed as we move forward.
- What if I am having an issue with my laptop? You can email our helpdesk at IThelpdesk@casdschools.org. Our technology department is working hard to assist and handle the many calls and emails that they are receiving. Please be patient and they will get back to you.
- What about the Keystone Exams (KE), the annual state assessments given in Algebra, and the PSSA? The KE tests have been canceled for this year. The PSSA testing has also been cancelled.

- Will students earn full credit for this year? Teachers have carefully reviewed the curriculum framework documents and will adjust instruction so that students will be prepared to advance to the next grade level. However, for that to happen, students must attend their assigned classes and complete their required work for the remainder of the year (whether that is virtual/online, or if we physically return to school at some point). If students are not completing work or attending scheduled classes, teachers will be contacting parents regarding their concerns.
- What will be the last day of school for students? At this point, with the information provided to us by the Governor and Department of Education, the district expects the last day of school to be June 11, 2020. We do realize that we could receive word from the Governor or the Pennsylvania Department of Education that could change this.
- What if I have additional questions? Students specific questions should be sent to your classroom teacher. Parents may contact their child's teacher or Principal via email.

• Resources

- Where can I find resources to help me with my assignments? Your teachers will share resources with you on their teacher page. You can continue to use online resources that you were using before the mandated closure such as, CPM
